

Procedure for Suspected Concussion

- If a player receives a possible concussion during a game or a practice, the player will automatically be removed for the rest of that game or practice.
 - For practices and games without a certified referee, the coach will be responsible for determining removal;
 - For games officiated by a certified referee, the coach or the referee may make that determination. If a referee determines the player should be removed from the game, the coach must follow that decision.
- The referee and the coach must report to the club president that a concussion may have occurred.
- The player may not return to play (either practices or games) until a physician's note is received from the player clearing this player for play. It shall be the coach's responsibility to collect the note from the player. The coach must not allow the player to return to play without a such a note. Once received, the player may fully return to play.
